

New Software Removes Files from Stolen Laptop Computers.

Stillwater, Oklahoma, June 14, 2006-

Software pioneer AIT Solutions, LLC is pleased to announce the availability of MyLaptopGPS[®] stolen computer file recovery and location system. The system uniquely combines technology previously available through various existing providers, with first time available programming that will allow the service provider, or local IT security personnel, to actually retrieve and delete files at the direction of the rightful owner. Once reported stolen, specific files or even the entire contents of a computer hard drive can be captured for the subscriber, saved and/or forwarded. Files then can even be remotely erased from the stolen computer, leaving the thief with no files, and the prospect of law enforcement closing in quickly.

MyLaptopGPS[®] stolen computer file recovery and location system software runs covertly--a thief will likely not even know it is present. Once the computer is reported stolen, the system will utilize the internet to locate the computer, then automatically retrieve and delete critical files.

The system includes permanent external identification labels that may be applied by the owner as a deterrent to would-be thieves. Removal of the die cast titanium alloy label is virtually impossible, making the stolen computer unavailable for sale through any legitimate outlet.

MyLaptopGPS[®] Computer and file recovery system was developed by software design engineer Dan Yost. Yost, along with software engineer Bruce Wilkinson have been developing and marketing software and providing IT services for over 15 years. Recent programming breakthroughs lead to the development of this unique capability.

Further information, including a video presentation and purchase details can be found at MyLaptopGPS.com, or telephone (800) 963-1137. Media inquiries may be directed to Mr. Wilkinson at (479) 366-7695.
